

J. Ross Brickman's Story:

I have been going to the Children's Heart Clinic since 1989. In the past 15 years I have met and interacted with countless doctors, nurses, technicians and staff members. With each interaction my comfort and confidence, with this now extended family, has grown. No matter what the circumstances where that brought me into the office, I always knew they cared about how I was doing and they were interested in what I had to say. They are professionals who never forget about the individual and there is no question in my mind where I would have ended up without them. There is also no question as to who I have to thank for getting me to where I am today.
